Biographical Note

Georgine Milmine (1874–1950)

A native of Ontario, Canada, Milmine was editing the women's pages at the Syracuse Herald when she married its managing editor, Benjamin Welles. They moved to nearby Auburn, New York, when he became an editorial writer for the Auburn Citizen. Welles passed away in 1911, after which Milmine married Arthur A. Adams, a prominent Auburn druggist.

According to most accounts, Milmine was impressed by Ida Tarbell's reporting on the Standard Oil Company in McClure's Magazine, and was inspired to write about Mary Baker Eddy in a similar fashion. Eddy was at that time a very well-known American woman and religious leader. Milmine spent a number of years (most likely between 1903 and 1906) doing interviews and research for what would become a series of articles, "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science," which ran from January 1907 to June 1908. These were subsequently compiled into a book published in 1909. After she turned her materials and early drafts over to McClure's, her involvement with the project was limited. The articles were largely rewritten by staff editors, including Willa Cather, Burton J. Hendrick, and Will Irwin.

References indicate that Milmine continued working as a newspaper and magazine writer, but no other work of hers has surfaced. She and her second husband moved to Falmouth, Massachusetts, in 1937, and they lived there until Milmine passed away on August 27, 1950, just three weeks before her husband.

Willa Cather (1873–1947)

Born in Virginia Cather moved to Nebraska with her family when she was four years old. At one time she wanted to become a surgeon. But after graduating from the University of Nebraska she began writing for newspapers, making use of a lively undergraduate literary career.

After working in Pittsburgh, Cather accepted an editing job at McClure's in 1906 and moved to Boston. While there, she edited Georgine Milmine's serial publication on Mary Baker Eddy. Two years later she became managing editor of the magazine, a position she filled until 1912, when her book Alexander's Bridge was published. This was Cather's first credited book. When Doubleday published The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science in 1909, it was credited solely to Milmine. Cather did not receive credit for the book until 1993, when the University of Nebraska Press republished it.

Burton J. Hendrick (1870–1949)

Born in New Haven, Connecticut, Hendrick received a master's from Yale University in 1897. After graduation he went to work for the New Haven Morning News. Within a few years, he had moved to New York City and was writing for a number of publications, including The New York Evening Post and The New York Sun. In 1905 McClure's hired him as a staff writer. His most prominent work at the magazine was the exposé "The Story of Life-Insurance." He called on his earlier involvement in editing Milmine's series of articles about Mary Baker Eddy to write his own 1912 article on her, titled "Christian Science Since Mrs. Eddy." In 1913 Hendrick left McClure's to serve as an associate editor of World's Work. Eventually he struck out on his own as a successful biographer, receiving Pulitzer Prizes for The Victory at Sea, The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page, and The Training of an American. At the time of his death he was working on a biography of Louise Whitfield Carnegie.

Will (William Henry) Irwin (1873–1948)

A graduate of Stanford University, Irwin worked for a number of newspapers, including the San Francisco Sun and the New York Sun. He was an editor of McClure's Magazine from 1901 to 1907. He won acclaim for his coverage of the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and was a war correspondent for the Saturday Evening Post during World War I. He later wrote plays and novels, and corresponded extensively with President Herbert Hoover. Irwin was married to the feminist author Inez Haynes Irwin (who published as Inez Haynes Gilmore) from 1916 until the time of his death.

Frederick W. Peabody (1862–1932)

Born in Brooklyn, New York, Peabody attended the New York Polytechnic Institute and Columbia University. He received a law degree in 1888, moving to Boston after passing the New York bar. His marriage to Anna May, daughter of a prominent Boston family, was tumultuous and ended in divorce in 1908, following several court cases and accusations that he had stolen and spent his wife's inheritance.

In 1899 Josephine Curtis Woodbury hired Peabody to prosecute a libel suit against Mary Baker Eddy. What began as an attempt to earn money and fame seems to have turned personal, and he spent the rest of his life fighting bitterly against Eddy and the Christian Science movement. His lecture "A Complete Exposé of Eddyism or Christian Science: The Plain Truth in Plain Terms Regarding Mary Baker G. Eddy" was subsequently published as a pamphlet in 1901. Peabody delivered further lectures on the same topic and went on to write two more books.

From 1906 to 1907 he corresponded with Georgine Milmine and Willa Cather. A portion of the research and accounts they used to write the McClure's articles seems to have come from him, involving many of the same accusations and assumptions he used against Eddy.

In March 1907 Peabody joined in the "Next Friends" suit, which accused Eddy of being incompetent to manage her affairs. He was in fact a moving force behind the entire suit. It was dismissed in October 1907. Peabody remained in contact with Eddy's son George Glover, and was also involved in a 1911 suit to contest her will.

Scope and Content Note

The Georgine Milmine collection documents research, writing, and correspondence related to a series of 14 articles about Mary Baker Eddy that appeared in McClure's Magazine from January 1907 to June 1908. It also documents The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science, a 1909 biography credited to Milmine.

The bulk of the collection dates from 1903 to 1909, when the research, writing, and publication of the original McClure's articles took place. The early years primarily document the preparation of the articles, while the later years document public reaction, both favorable and unfavorable. Frederick W. Peabody possibly prepared some of the research material included in Milmine's notes, although no outside verification yet exists.

Milmine primarily generated the collection in setting out to write a series of articles on Eddy's life and work. She took extensive notes, both from library work and from personal interviews, kept a clippings file of newspaper articles, collected photographs, and retyped passages from Eddy's published writings. Eventually she turned her research into drafts of articles, none of which seem to bear any resemblance to the final published articles. Her work also sparked a great deal of correspondence among Milmine, various McClure's editors, and individuals who wrote to express their approval or disapproval, or to offer more information.

Series I, IV, and V are arranged and described at the item level. An item level index exists for Series I and IV. Series II and III are arranged at the folder level. Rosanne Zahler, a staff member of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, created an inventory in 1929, which is found at the beginning of the collection. The organization and arrangement of materials—particularly in Series IV—pertains to this inventory.

The collection consists of five series:

Series I: Correspondence

Series II: Manuscript of The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science

Series III: Printed Materials

Series IV: Research Notes

Series V: Scrapbook

Series I, Correspondence, 1904-1908, n.d.

Series Scope and Content Note

The series consists mostly of letters written to Milmine (Welles) or editors of McClure's during the publication of the series, beginning in January 1907 and ending in June 1908. Both complimentary and critical correspondence exists, often supporting or objecting to McClure's claim to be providing an unbiased account of Christian Science and Eddy. Some letters suggest further avenues for research or contain stories about Eddy. People also wrote to correct inaccuracies in the articles or to state disapproval. Correspondence sent to Milmine and McClure's significantly increased after the publication of an editorial announcement in the December issue, regarding the upcoming article series. Earlier letters relate to Milmine's research. Several letters are anonymous and not dated. While handwritten and typescript original letters are present, the bulk are copies that McClure's made for Milmine.

The collection consists of several letters from Hannah Sanborn Philbrook, a childhood acquaintance of Eddy from whom much of the information on Eddy's early life was sourced. Between November 1906 and June 1907, people connected to the articles contacted Milmine and McClure's, such as George Tuttle, Richard Kennedy (1907 January 7), and Arthur T. Buswell (1907 March 11, 1907 April 9, and 1907 April 19). The series also includes letters by Alfred Farlow, as well as one written by Gilbert Roe, inquiring about evidence behind the Milmine articles. Milmine and McClure's received the vast majority of correspondence, although some outgoing items from McClure's staff are present, largely involving responses to incoming correspondence.

Series I is arranged chronologically, and is described at the item level. An item level description index is available. See the attached Index to Correspondence and Research Materials for a listing of persons.

Series IV, Research Materials, 1864-1882, 1905-1907, n.d.Series Scope and Content Note

Series IV makes up the bulk of the collection. The majority of materials are undated. Dates present in this series largely refer to the original form of materials (such as newspaper articles and court transcripts), not to times when Milmine made copies for research purposes.

Materials included in this series include typescript copies and extracts of affidavits, interviews, court transcripts, newspaper articles, writings by Eddy and others, and correspondence. There are also typescript and handwritten notes on relevant topics, sourced from a wide variety of materials.

The items in this series cover topics spanning Eddy's lifetime and the discovery and development of Christian Science. Milmine focused in particular on interviews and statements of early Christian Scientists no longer associated with the Christian Science movement, including Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy, Daniel H. Spofford, Arthur T. Buswell, and Edward J. Arens. Significant notes and materials on court cases are present. These include documents on a lawsuit involving payment for services rendered, brought by George H. Barry against Eddy, as well as the conspiracy to commit murder charge against Arens and Asa Gilbert Eddy regarding Spofford.

Series IV has no formal arrangement structure. It is largely grouped together based on numbers assigned in the staff inventory in 1929. An item-level description index exists for the series. See the attached Index to Correspondence and Research Materials for a listing of persons.
